

C. W. ("Cap") Cody, well known merchant of the Laurel section, died Monday, according to reports coming to Marshall. He had been in declining health for some time. He had recently had erected a large store building where he had been a merchant for many years. He was considered a good business man and quite accommodating to his customers. Though married twice, he left no children, only an adopted son. He is survived by his wife and one brother, Mr. Jim Cody of the Bull Creek section. Funeral services were Tuesday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Briggs, interment following at the Foster Creek church cemetery.
